DELAWARE SCHOOLS

School Buildings Are Needed Throughout The State

CONDITIONS BADLY CONGESTED

If any one doubted the necessity for school buildings in Delaware he would quickly be convinced if he would take a trip through the State and see the quarters into which Boards of Trustees have been forced to place the children under their care.

Beginning at the northern end of the State the first point is New Castle. Despite the fact that the Board of Education last summer erected portable buildings to accommodate four grades the major part of the high school is in a building not the property of the school district, a building which dates back almost to the days of the Revolution; and some classes meet in rooms in an old Court House built by William Penn.

In Delaware City they have for several years used rooms in the Episcopal Church and have recently occupied the Sunday School room of the Methodist Church. This is the second year that classes have met in rooms over a drug store several blocks from the main building.

In St. Georges a part of the school meets in a room over a store right at the fork of the busiest highway in the State.

In Middletown 372 children attend school but the school authorities do not own a single building. The main school meets in an old Academy which is rented. One class meets in the parlor of a neighboring dwelling and two in the Parish House of the Episcopal Church. One class meets in what used to be a club or field house in the old days.

In Clayton classes meet in a three room structure which has been added to the older building by private citizens and rented to the State.

In Frederica, while the building called a High School is not rented, it is merely a dwelling which is not at all adapted for school purposes. It was purchased by the old County Board of Education for temporary use because it could not be rented.

In Milford the reason there are not some rented quarters is because no rooms are available. However, the District has loaned to it by the Delaware School Auxiliary Association two portable buildings that accommodate three classes.

In Milton both the Masonic and Odd Fellows Halls have been taken over for school purposes, one class meeting on the lower floor of each.

In Georgetown, one class meets in the Sunday School room of the Episcopal Church and one over a store on the main business street of the town.

Selbyville has rather a better building than some of its near Delaware neighbors, but it is so inadequate that three of the classes are housed in an old church which was abandoned some years ago as a house of worship.

As in Milford, the reason why there are no rooms rented at Greenwood is because there are none that can be found. A part of the congestion is relieved by a one room "portable" loaned by the Auxiliary Association.

Bridgeville has recently faced an acute situation in this line. Forced last summer to vacate two rooms in a club house, the Board of Trustees fitted up for class room use some basement rooms never intended for educational purposes and rented more space over the post-office. All this is in addition to a two-room "portable" loaned by the Auxiliary.

Two rooms in the Seaford fire house were recently denied to the grades that had occupied them. This drove the Seaford Board of Education to spending a balance which they had been saving for more permanent work, on a hastily constructed wing to an old and unsafe building. Incidentally they by this spoiled an inadequate but convenient playground. One class continues to meet in a rented store building.

Delmar also falls back on the old stand—the fire house—for one class. The Board of Trustees there recently felt compelled to seek even more quarters for another class.

These are only the cases where no prospect of relief is in sight. It is not worth while to mention Claymont, Newark, Dover and Smyrna, for they do have hopes of relief in the not too distant future. But this does not exhaust the list of places where public facilities are inadequate and rented quarters are being used.

The worst of it all is the fact that it is getting worse. More calls for room come in each year. The whole situation is a startling challenge to the State Board, the State Legislature and to the people of the State in general. What shall we do to house our school children in the way that they deserve?

A Good Physic

When you want a physic that is mild and gentle in effect, easy to take and certain to act, take Chamberlain's Tablets. They are excellent.

ST. ANNE'S CHURCH NOTES

EPISCOPAL

Sunday, Oct. 29th, 1922. The 20th Sunday after Trinity.

Services: 10 30 A. M. Morning prayer, Litany and sermon.

11.45 A. M. Sunday School.

7.30 P. M. Evening prayer and sermon.

The annual meeting of the Delaware Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary will be held at Trinity Parish House, Wilmington, on Thursday, November 2d, beginning at 10 o'clock. This meeting is to hear the reports of the Committee on Constitution before adjourning to the church at 11 o'clock for service. Holy Communion will be celebrated by the Bishop of the Diocese. The business meeting will be resumed immediately after lunch. The Clerical Brotherhood of the Diocese will meet at the same hour and the luncheon will be served to both organizations at the same time. Members of St. Anne's Parish Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary who expect to attend the meeting, please inform Mrs. Cuthbert Green not later than Wednesday, November 1st.

Service on All Saints' Day, November 1st, Holy Communion at 10.30. All the Saints who are uncalendared are commemorated on All Saints' Day. And on this day we remember departed friends who are asleep in Jesus. 'Tis a day to visit graves and to place wreaths of remembrance upon the spot that holds our oved ones. We mourn not as without hope for those who have gone before, and in the Prayer for the Church Militant, we give thanks "for all Christ's servants departed this life in His faith and fear."

"O blest communion, fellowship divine!
We feebly struggle, they in glory shine!
Yet all are one in Thee, for all are Thine. Alleluia."

The enemies of the Christian Church are making their attacks from all sides. The fundamental beliefs of the Christian are being criticized and the individual members are sometimes ridiculed. In addition to this the Christian Sabbath is more and more becoming a day set apart not for the glorification of God, but for the use of Mammon. There is an old law which goes back to creation itself and comes directly from God. It is as follows; "Remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy. Six days shalt thou labor, and do all thy work: but the seventh day is the sabbath of the Lord thy God; in it thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, thy manservant, nor thy maidservant, nor thy cattle, nor thy stranger that is within thy gates: For in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, the sea and all that in them is, and rested the seventh day: wherefore the lord blessed the sabbath day and hallowed it." This law cannot be broken with impunity. Let us observe this commandment and teach others that the law of God still stands.

Many Condensed News Items of the Past Week

IN THIS AND NEARBY POINTS

The ducking season will open in Maryland on Wednesday next, November 1.

The women of the Home Missionary Society of Bethesda M. E. Church cleared $92.60 from their bake held last week.

Mrs. A. S. Peterson has rented one of the storerooms in "The Everett" theatre, and will open to-day with a full line of ladies' corsets, millinery, etc.

John Heldmyer, Jr., Real Estate Broker, has sold for Mrs. Abercrumbia her house on East Main street to Mrs. Mary Dugan. Consideration private.

According to a careful estimate of the Republican leaders the Republicans are between seven and eight thousand ahead on the registration in the State.

William F. Cann, of Kirkwood, reported the theft of a new Ford Sedan on Friday night. The machine was parked on the Eleventh street side of the Hotel duPont.

The Ways and Means Committee of the St. Georges Home and School Association will hold a meeting next Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of Mrs. G. R. Snedeker.

Delaware City Presbyterian Church will co-operate with the effort to conserve fuel and beginning Thursday evening, will hold midweek meetings in the homes of the members.

Better see that the lights are right on your car before you go out at night. Beginning last Friday night the State Highway Police started to arrest every driver of an automobile who is operating his car without a tail light, or with only one headlight.

Endeavoring to avoid hitting another machine which, it was claimed, was "hogging" the State highway near Blackbird, Sunday afternoon, the automobile of Mrs. Cora L. Bachtell, of Dover, driven by Mr. Van Bushkirk, collided with a telephone pole, almost wrecking the machine, besides injuring both Mrs. Bachtell and Mrs. Van Bushkirk.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Nowak, of Wilmington, have purchased through David E. Peters, of the Strout Farm Agency, the "J. C. Harris Farm," containing 42½ acres, situate on an arm of Blackbird Creek, in Appoquinimink Hundred. The Nowak's expect to locate on their newly purchased farm about the first week in March. They will do general farming and poultry raising.

Will Repeat Play

The three-act comedy "Brown Makes Things Hum" presented in the New Century Club last evening by the Senior class of the Middletown High School, will be repeated in the Assembly Hall at Townsend, Wednesday evening, Nov. 1st, at eight o'clock. This production was well received at the New Century Club Friday evening, and will doubtless be witnessed by a large audience when it is repeated in Townsend next week. The proceeds will be turned over to the fund for the Memorial Library which is to be erected in Newark.

Heavy Registration

In the third and fourth districts of St. Georges Hundred 227 voters had their names placed on the registration books last Saturday. This makes a total of 791 voters in the third district and voters in the fourth district, who are qualified to vote at the election on November 7th.

PARENT-TEACHERS MEETING

The first meeting of the Summit Bridge Parent-Teachers Association was held in the school house on Wednesday evening, Oct. 18. The election of officers for the ensuing year was held: President, Mrs. J. O. Clark; Vice president, Mrs. J. W. Kane; Treasurer, Mrs. B. W. Johnson; Secretary, Margaret Clark. On that evening we had an enrollment of 36 members. We hope in a short time to have 100. We ask that everyone in the community who are not members to send their names to the teacher and be a member of Summit Bridge P. T. A.

The meeting was opened by the president and the minutes read. Mrs. Millard Golt resigned as treasurer of association. It was decided to give $10 to the Memorial Library Fund at the University of Delaware.

After the business meeting refreshments of cake and lemonade were served. Those on the committee were: Mrs. Thomas Sartin, Mrs. Ellis Sartin, Mrs. Frank Kronemeir, Mrs Harvey Jewell, Mrs. Mitchell Golt.

The program for the evening was as follows: song, three little sisters; recitation, "Come out to play," Paul Golt; exercise, Health Rhymes; playing the piano, Helen Fredorak; recitation, Billy Golt; exercise, "The Bees;" recitation, "Grandma's Cake," Floyd Thompson; recitation, Tyson Sartin; motion song, "Hands are Clasped;" recitation, Leslie Cavender; "Why Teacher Knows," Rodney Clark; song, Kathryne Kane; recitation, "At Night," Clara Sartin; song, "Three Little Kittens;" recitation, "Jack Frost," Florence Williams; song, Helen Fedorak; "The coming of Jack Frost," Anna Golt; dialogue, "Brave Boys;" recitation, Kathryne Kane; game, "Little Sister;" closing song, "Autumn Lullebye.

Miss Alyce Hutton has returned to Summit Bridge for another year. She is a very good teacher and we are glad to welcome her back.

CELEBRATED THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM H. WRIGHT

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Wright, well-known residents of Townsend, whose golden wedding anniversary was observed on Tuesday, October 10th. The event was of a double nature owing to the fact that their daughter, Mrs. Cassie McVey also observed her 10th wedding anniversary at the same time. The affair was observed with a big dinner and other social functions of much enjoyment and during the day all of the celebrants were congratulated by their many friends and a goodly number of postcards were received in honor of the occasion. Mr. and Mrs. Wright have four children who are: Mrs. Sadie Jenkins and Mrs. Cassie McVey, of Chester; William E. Wright, of Atlantic City, N. J.; and Mrs. Hannah Isaacs, of Townsend, and fifteen grandchildren, part of whom live in Chester and part near Townsend. An unusual circumstance is the Wright family has not had a death in it for the past fifty years.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Mary E. Crouch

Mrs. Mary E. Crouch, widow of the late James R. Crouch, and mother-in-law of Ex-Sheriff Joshua Z. Crossland, died at the home of her son-in-law Mr. Harry Greely in Philadelphia at ten o'clock Wednesday evening, aged 79 years. Mrs. Crouch was visiting in Philadelphia and was stricken with paralysis two weeks ago, which resulted in her death.

Mrs. Crouch's life was one marked with kindness and good cheer and her affection for her kindred and numerous friends was tender and abiding. She leaves four daughters and one son. They are: Mrs Harry Greely, of Philadelphia; Mrs. Caddie Bacon, of Wilmington; Mrs. Joshua Z. Crossland, of this town; Mrs. Harry Spicer, of Laurel; and Mr. Colonel Crouch, of Pennsgrove, N. J.; also one sister, Mrs. George S. Richards, of this town.

Funeral services will be held at the home of her son-in-law Joshua Z. Crossland, to-morrow (Sunday) afternoon at 1.30 o'clock and interment will take place in Bethel cemetery.

Chamber of Commerce Meeting

A special meeting of the Middletown Chamber of Commerce will be held in the office of Daniel W. Stevens Monday evening, Oct. 30th, at eight o'clock for the purpose of discussing several important matters. The committee appointed at the last meeting of the Board to find suitable sites for several large signs will make its report and other routine business will be transacted at this meeting. All members are earnestly requested to be present.

VISIT U. OF D.

More than 200 boys taking the vocational agricultural course in the various high schools of the State were guests of the School of Agriculture, University of Delaware, Monday. There are enrolled in the high schools outside of Wilmington 273 such students, and 222 were in the visiting party. Most of them came by automobile. Laurel, Seaford, Bridgeville, Milton, Selbyville and Lord Baltimore, in Sussex county; Smyrna, Frederica, Harrington, Caesar Rodney, Greenwood and Felton, in Kent county, and Middletown, duPont and Newark, in New Castle, were represented.

Members of the Agricultural Club, a student organization of the University, acted as hosts and took the visitors on inspection trips. Much time was spent at the experiment farm, where the prospective young farmers inspected the dairy barns, live stock, orchards, agronomy plots, etc. The experimental work was explained by instructors. At noon there was a picnic luncheon on the lawn at the University farm, when short addresses were made by Dr. R. W. Heim, State director of vocational education; Dean Charles A. McCue, head of the agricultural department of the University, and Dr. H. V. Holloway, State Superintendent of Public Instruction. After this the boys were taken to Wolf Hall and Old College, where they were welcomed by Dean E. Laurence Smith.

The visit was arranged by Dr. Heim and will be made an annual affair.

Injured in Auto Accident

While returning from school Tuesday afternoon Dorothy Savin and Francis Maloney, met with an accident when the car in which they were riding turned over near "Cherry Tree" corner. Dorothy Savin was the most painfully injured, being fastened under the car and received many cuts and bruises. Francis Maloney was also cut and bruised. The car was badly damaged.

MIDDLETOWN A. A. WINS

Although outweighed five pounds to the man, St. Peter's A. A. of New Castle gave Middletown a good fight in a bitterly fought contest which ended in a 46 to 0 score in favor of the locals. At no time was Middletown hard pressed, the visitors best attempt being a forward in the third quarter when they were stopped on Middletown's 15-yard line. Middletown resorted to line plunges and end runs to net her gains. Punts and forwards were used mainly by St. Peter's because they were always in dangerous territory.

The lineup:

St. Peter's		Middletown
Gallagher	Left end	Pinder
Tidwell	Left tackle	Bingnear
Dougherty	Left guard	Vinyard
Susie	Center	Hall
Hartnett	Right guard	Stant
McDonough	Right tackle	McWhorter
Weldin	Right end	R. Fouracre (Carey)
Wright	Quarterback	Records
McClusker	Right halfback	McDowell
Walls	Fullback	Capt. C. Fouracre

SCORE BY PERIODS

St. Peter's A. A.	0	0	0	0	0
Middletown	13	12	7	14	46

ST. LUKE'S ACADEMY TO-DAY

The Middletown boys are to face a much stronger team when the St. Luke's Academy lines up against them this (Saturday). The game is scheduled for Academy Park at 2.30 P. M. It behooves every Middletown booster who has the interests of his team at heart, to be on hand to give the local boys financial as well as moral support.

BLIND WORK PROGRESSING

The industry of the blind shows great signs of activity. In the past three months half a score of new cases of blindness who lived in the black despond have seen the light, and have passed out of the gloom of indolence. Three men and a boy have been brought to the Blind Shop where they are making good progress towards a well-earned livelihood. One boy from Newark has been brought to the shop and sent to school during the day while he learns a trade after school hours, together with the embossed print of the blind. One blind girl who has been lately stricken has been taken by our teacher, Miss Burrows, and introduced to all vocations of the blind. She is bright and active and is a wonderful prospect for achievement in her new condition of life. She will be taught to read with her fingers, to study music and may be prepared to return to her sighted school to take her place among her normal fellows.

A gentleman of some degree, of Milford has been visited by our field agent and taught the Braille alphabet. Here is the beautiful letter he writes, all in the revised Braille type for the blind. We have sent him plenty of books and begged him to come and see us.

Dear Mr. Van Trump:

Just a few lines for I am not advanced quite enough in Braille to write more than a note, but I wish to thank you for the slate, it is appreciated and all other kindness that has been shown me through the Commission for the Blind. What I need now is speed in getting in touch and I hope through continued practice to soon be able to read a book. I think you were fortunate in securing such an able field worker as Mr. T. J. Hall. He is surely fitted for the work as he has both the ability and patience to teach the blind.

Respt. yours,
WALTER P. GRAHAM.

Explosion in Garage

A slight explosion occurred at E. M. Shallcross' Garage, about four o'clock Tuesday afternoon, and Norman Clemmenser and Miller D. Reed, two employees of the garage were burned about the face and head, by the exploding gas. The explosion took place in the pit where the large gasoline engine is installed which operates the electric lighting plant for the garage, and was caused by a surplus accumulation of dead gas which had failed to escape through the large pipe provided for that purpose. The compression was so great in the repair room that it forced one of the window frames entirely out, and the report of the explosion was heard in all sections of the town.

Sunday Mail Service Discontinued

The discontinuance of the Sunday night mail service on the Delaware division of the Pennsylvania Railroad has caused much dissatisfaction among business men. This mail allowed business men, especially merchants, to send mail on Sunday and have it in the hands of business firms in Wilmington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and other cities on Monday morning, and was a great convenience. By the discontinuance of this service, business men cannot get mail off until Monday morning. It is likely the railway mail service will be petitioned to restore the mail.

Have you bought your bonds for the new Opera House? If not you had better do so to-day. They are backed by securities that make them safe.

"SWEET" CROP LARGE

The Estimate is 1,380,000 Bushels This Year

FIFTY PER CENT INCREASE

According to conditions and production forecasts of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics for October 1, a decrease of 3,000,000 bushels of sweet potatoes is shown from the estimate of a month ago. The crop for 1922 as estimated on October 1 is 105,490,000 bushels, and the total production for 1921 was 98,660,000 bushels, thus showing a production increase of 6,830,000 bushels over last year.

It is estimated that Delaware's production this year will be 1,358,000 bushels. The total production for 1922 was 900,000 bushels, showing an increase this year of 458,000 bushels or more than 50 per cent than last year. According to official estimates Alabama will produce more sweet potatoes this year than any other state in the United States, being credited with 13,503,000 bushels as against a total production last year of 12,150,000 bushels. According to official estimate Delaware ranks fifteenth among all the states in the union in producing sweet potatoes, being slightly ahead of Maryland, which is credited with 1,348,000 bushels.

The State Board of Agriculture, through its Division of Markets has been studying conditions in regard to sweet potatoes and finds many fields showing a production of approximately 500 baskets per acre. Sussex county produces practically all of Delaware's commercial crop of sweet potatoes, the vicinity of Laurel and Seaford being the heaviest producing center, and in spite of the fact that increased storage space has been made available, there is a decided shortage of storing space and many growers have been forced to market a part of their crop, even at the prevailing low prices. This shortage of storing space also applies to other sections of the country, and they, likewise, have been forced to put some of their crop on the market, and this condition, it is believed, is largely responsible for the low prices at this time, and there is a general feeling that after this stock is cleaned up, and the demand for storage stock is felt, that higher prices will prevail. At the present time growers are receiving from 15 to 18 cents per basket for the Big Stem and other like varieties and about 25 cents per basket for the Up River, Big Leaf and other varieties of equal quality. The difference in price is due to the superiority of the latter named varieties in keeping and handling quality. Some stock was sold in contract before the crop was harvested at 45 cents per basket.

In New Store

Redgrave Bros. who were so unfortunate as to have their stock of hardware burned in both of the fires which destroyed the old and new Opera Houses during the past three years have again moved to the same site and now have a handsome hardware store located in "The Everett" Theatre building, where they will be glad to see their old and new customers.

Summers and Winters

By JANE OSBORN

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Marvin Dawes arrived in Oak Lawns on the four o'clock train from the city on November 1. As usual he was not a day late. He hailed a waiting station taxi to convey him and an assortment of bags and boxes that had arrived by an earlier train out the old Cedar Swamp road. He stopped at the post office on the way for the keys that were always left with the postmaster on October 31 and as often called for by Marvin Dawes on the following day.

"You don't happen to know a woman that wants to work as cook or housekeeper?" asked Martin of the postmaster. "The Jap I had so many years has gone to San Francisco and left me in a lurch."

"Why don't you get another Jap?" was the postmaster's not too civil answer. "They always said you were so partial to 'em."

Marvin Dawes laughed. "Well, I was," he admitted. "But the fact is, I had a feeling that the old place would be a little more cheerful if there was a woman in the kitchen. I thought perhaps you might hear of some one who'd like the place. If you do, let me know." And so Marvin was off to the old homestead on Cedar Swamp road.

One of the boxes he had brought up from the station contained the essentials for a quickly made supper, which Marvin prepared for himself with no very great skill or enjoyment. The next day arrived the faithful Pat with Marvin's two saddle horses. It was a standing agreement between Marvin Dawes and Patrick Shean that on or closely following every November first he, Pat, should report for duty until the following May first. During the six warmer months Pat always found work elsewhere, but he would never consent to a permanent position that would make it impossible for him to return to Marvin with the coming of November.

Pat's work consisted in taking care of the two horses, one of which Marvin kept for himself and another for occasional guests. This and work about the old place kept him only comfortably busy. As a cook Pat possessed neither variety nor skill, but he good naturedly consented to fill in the breech left by the departure of the Jap. The postmaster either could not or would not secure a successor.

"As usual," Marvin told Pat the day of the latter's arrival, "the place has been set in frightful confusion. They do it out of spite, I suppose. They set to work to turn the house into a summer cottage. The screens are still in. Those flimsy white curtains have been left in place of the heavy winter drapery. The porch is cluttered with a lot of new wicker chairs and things. There's a new refrigerator in the kitchen, and you've seen, I suppose, that they've added a sleeping porch to one of the bedrooms upstairs. You'll have to help me put the place back in condition for winter. It's absurd to think of the place as a summer house. Because of course it isn't. It wasn't built for that sort of thing—"

And Pat with a chuckle agreed.

Pat knew as well as did Marvin Dawes the conditions on which Marvin held the right to occupy the old house in winter.

Marvin's grandfather before his death had been reluctant to leave the old homestead, an exceptionally well built house of twenty rooms and more, with several acres of well planted lawns and groves, to either of his daughters. These daughters had become estranged through the business quarrels of their husbands and certainly would not wish to share the old place. So he had stipulated in his will that his daughter Lucy should have the entire use of the place from May first to the last day of October, while Clarice should have it from November first to the last day of April. A fund was left adequate to pay all taxes and upkeep expenses of the house, so there might never need to be any dispute between the two sisters about the old house.

Clarice had died leaving the right to the house to her son, Marvin Dawes, who had become so attached to the house in his boyhood that he never failed to arrange his affairs so that he could occupy it during the months of autumn and winter. Lucy, too, had died only a year before, and the right to occupy the house from May first to the last of October had been handed down to a grandniece of her husband, also named Lucy.

Marvin Dawes had no luck in finding a housekeeper or cook and he stuck the winter out none too comfortably under the rule of Pat in the kitchen. On the last day of April they departed, leaving the keys as usual with the postmaster.

On May 1 Lucy arrived with Irish Hannah in the guise of chaperon and general household assistant.

"It's a perfect shame," Lucy told Hannah on the second of May, "the way that Marvin Dawes person upsets this place—takes down all the screens, stows away my white curtains and puts up those dreadful velour things; puts the wicker furniture in the attic and boards up the sleeping porch. It's absurd to think of the place as a winter home—it wasn't built for that sort of thing—"

Lucy delivered her remarks from the vantage place of the ladder where she had been standing taking down Marvin Dawes' winter draperies. "It takes two weeks to get the place into decent shape for summer. I really think that something could be done about it. There was a will or something that made it perfectly clear that Aunt Lucy was to have her interests protected—and I am sure I ought to be, too."

"You might be calling at the lawyer's to find out," suggested Hannah good naturedly. "We could be running into town some day next week—"

So it was that toward the end of the next week, as soon as ever Lucy and Hannah had managed to get the old house into summer garb, Lucy made a flying trip to the city. She waited in the reception room for a few moments while the lawyer concluded his conversation with a previous caller.

"I've never met the person," said the caller, "and I've no desire to do so, but I wish you'd look up the will and see whether you can't find some clause to protect me—perhaps I could buy out the young woman's share in the house. I'd be willing to pay more than a fair price to get complete possession. Suppose you look up the will and see whether we couldn't manage somehow."

The lawyer saw Marvin to the reception room and was there informed by his reception clerk that the young woman waiting was Miss Lucy Brent.

"By the way," said the lawyer calling to Marvin Dawes as he was opening the door to depart, "suppose you wait a moment. I may have something to tell you about the matter in question." So Marvin turned back and took the chair vacated by Lucy Brent, whom the lawyer now graciously bowed into his private office.

Lucy explained her perplexity. "I have never met this unreasonable Mr. Dawes and I have no desire to do so. He is, of course, no real relative—only a very distant connection."

The lawyer smiled. "I'm sorry that you don't want to meet him. He happens to be very anxious to meet you. In fact, he's in the reception room now. I was going to suggest that we go out to luncheon together and talk the whole matter over."

Lucy considered for a moment. She had noticed the young man in the reception room and—well, he was not the sort of man she would mind meeting. The lawyer urged and Lucy with feigned reluctance consented.

"I've wanted to meet you," said Lucy. "You left some interesting sketches at the house that quite aroused my curiosity."

The lawyer smiled a little. He was really only a third person at this little luncheon party.

"And the way you transformed that old place with the curtains and wicker furniture!" exclaimed Marvin in a tone of deep admiration. "Is it possible that you did it without the aid of an interior decorator?"

And so it went. Somehow when Lucy left her lawyer's office that afternoon she had invited Marvin Dawes to come to the old house for the next week end. "Hannah will be delighted," she said. Politely she included the lawyer in the invitation, but wisely he refused.

The following week he received two letters, one from Marvin and one from Lucy. "Hang the will," wrote Marvin. "The house is going to be an all-year-round home for the two of us." And Lucy said, "We are going to have a very quiet little wedding, only a few friends of Marvin's and mine, but we won't be happy unless you are one of the guests. A week from Saturday is the day we have arranged, and we do hope that you will find it convenient."

Inspiration of Talking Machine.

Claiming the human throat as the inspiration of his invention, a Colorado man has introduced a new type of talking machine. The exterior is similar to others of the cabinet form, but the interior contains numerous departures from the usual make of instruments. The essential part of the innovation, described and illustrated in the Popular Mechanics Magazine, is a metal appliance fashioned after the throat and inclosed in the apex of a wooden horn of heavy construction. The tone is also increased by means of various other sound-absorbing and magnifying arrangements.

Citizen in First Place.

Whosoever in a state . . . knows how wisely to form the manners of men and to rule them at home and in war with excellent institutes, him in the first place, above others, I should esteem worthy of all honor.—Milton.

Pretty Things That are made at Home

IT APPEARS that the responsibility for toning up or brightening up afternoon and evening frocks is to fall upon girdles and sashes during the coming winter. They assume it cheerfully, since they look to beautiful ribbons to make the task a delightful one. And ribbons come up to all requirements in varieties that make any sort of sash or girdle or ornament, from the simplest to those that can only be described as gorgeous. They have always been the allies of fair women and are about to prove their value again.

The most important item in sashes is the wide sash of brilliant brocaded ribbon, or of plain velvet ribbon, with very long ends and handsome ornaments at its fastening. In bright, metallic brocades, it lifts the simple afternoon frock, of crepe or satin, into the dinner dress class—"it makes the dress" as the saying is. Such a sash is pictured at the center of the group of sashes portrayed here, made of rich brocade ribbon, brought loosely about the waist and falling in two very long ends from under a short loop at the left side. One of these ends falls considerably below the hem of the dress in the accepted mode. While wearing this splendid affair the pretty lady examines a sort of daisy-chain sash of satin ribbon, showing flowers made of the ribbon, set at intervals on a double sash in which the ribbon is knotted between the blossoms. This pretty piece of finery, for wear with evening dress, ends with loops.

Narrow picot ribbon, in two colors, makes the useful sash shown at the right. The two ribbons are plaited together and finished into long loops and ends at the left side. Bright color combinations, as royal blue and poppy red, make a delightful addition to a black frock—but colors are to be chosen with reference to their background. Just below, an odd sash of satin ribbon, shows the ribbon twisted for the girdle, and blossoms, made of folded ribbon, set at each side of the front. There are long ends at the left side. Picot-edged ribbon, wound over a heavy cord, makes the last of the sashes pictured. There are three cords about the waist with a rosette of gathered ribbon and two long ends at the left side.

Christmas is not so far away, especially to those who make many of the things they give. It would be hard to think of anything that takes less time and trouble to make than the pretty ribbon things in which color counts for so much.

The decree of good taste that clothes for young girls must be simple, is as fixed and changeless as the laws of the Medes and Persians. Whether for school wear or for gay hours, the mandate is the same; even party frocks lose their allure if they are too fussy, and clever experts in designing never forget to plan clothes that are, at once, ingenious and simple. The results have a charm of their own and one that belongs only to young girlhood.

For school wear, wool jersey, serge, wool crepe, alpaca, Scotch plaids and knitted fabrics are the sturdy favorites that fashion approves this season—all tried and not found wanting. For dress-up frocks nothing excels crepe de chine or printed wash silks and there are additional airy materials for party frocks, including georgette crepe and net. Taffeta belongs to all ages; it is delightfully managed for young girls and the fitness of crepe de chine is apparent in the frock pictured here. It forms the blouse, which may have a skirt of the same, or of velvet, duvetine, velours or wool crepe. The blouse is cut in kimono style, with round neck piped with satin and finished with a tie with tasseled ends of silk cord. The blouse is gathered into a satin hip band having two rows of fancy braid stitched on it. Elbow sleeves are finished with similar bands.

Wool jersey is a fine choice for school wear and is made in one-piece, long-waist frocks. One model is fastened with bone buttons down the front of the bodice. Its round neck and long sleeves are suitably finished with batiste collar and cuffs.

Some Dainty Accessories

Simplicity in Clothes for the Young

Coats Are Short.

Puffed Japanese rolls as an ornament promise an extensive vogue this fall. Some workers have used this means of marking the long bodice of one of their dance frocks fashioned in chiffon taffeta.

Printed Velvets.

Printed velvets are new, but by no means illogical fashion developments. They come in Persian designs and colorings as well as stripes and checks.

Gowns of Metal Cloth.

Metal zinnana cloth is regarded favorably as a medium for expressing the dinner gown by one manufacturer. The soft drapable qualities of the fabric render it suitable for use in the large size gowns.

Hosiery.

Smart white silk hose are cross-stitched in three colors in a very conventional design embroidered on the instep. For outdoor wear the embroidery is very colorful.

Depart From Girlish Frocks

Coming Winter May See Passing of Flapper Type of Dress, Writer Asserts.

Fashions are becoming more sophisticated. The flapper has met a formidable rival in the woman. So this winter, writes a fashion correspondent in the New York Tribune, may see the passing of the flapper type of dress.

All of the new styles show a strong tendency to depart from the juvenile types so prevalent during the past few years. They embody dignity and importance, two characteristics which of late years have been almost entirely lacking in dress.

The long skirt and the many variations of drapery now in use have helped to bring about these changes. The important part played by rapery rather handicaps the amateur dressmaker. No more can she hope to be dressed in the height of fashion in the simple chemise frock which she made so easily. No she must include in her wardrobe gowns draped on classic lines.

The ways in which drapery has vacillated in the position that it shall take in regard to the dress is somewhat astonishing. It began by adorning the side of the frock. After assuming numerous other positions it now elects to make the front the most important part of the gown.

Circular Effects Obtained.

Many think it comparatively easy to popularize a new style and that women are waiting to welcome anything new and striking in dress. This is not so. A real change in fashions is brought about very, very slowly. It is months, sometimes a year, after a style is shown before it is accepted even in a limited way. Take, for instance, the circular skirt. Two years ago designers put their best effects into models with circular skirts in an endeavor to make this fashion popular, and during the intervening time the best creators of styles have from time to time tried to force them. But it is only this autumn that we see this type of skirt making real progress.

It is not unusual to see skirts that are plain and tight across the back with circular panels in the front and at the sides, thus making a compromise between the straight line and the circular.

While daytime dresses show fan-shaped godets and front drapings, there is a strong tendency toward really wide skirts for the evening.

Skirts are very long. Lanvin, always the exponent of youth in dress, makes her models longer than those of any other dressmaker in Paris. So we may expect to see the extremely long-skirted frock taken up by young girls and the fitness of crepe de chine is apparent in the frock pictured here. It forms the blouse, which may have a skirt of the same, or of velvet, duvetine, velours or wool crepe. The blouse is cut in kimono style, with round neck piped with satin and finished with a tie with tasseled ends of silk cord. The blouse is gathered into a satin hip band having two rows of fancy braid

Deviate From Bateau Neckline.

Designers are trying to do away with the popular bateau neckline, and in their endeavor have introduced several interesting outlines for the necks of dresses, among the most unusual being the one-sided effect. There is the deep V-shaped neck cut high at the back and extremely low in front. This type requires a gilet or modesty piece, as the French call it.

A new French frock in which the one-sided effect is exaggerated almost to the point where it becomes bizarre, is important, as it stresses the strong tendency toward one-sided effects in both neckline and sleeve. On one side the dress is cut so high that it nearly forms a collar and slopes so far to the opposite side that it falls over the shoulder. The right side shows one long, tight sleeve, while there is no sleeve for the left side.

Another model emphasizing this tendency in dress is of pure Greek inspiration, the drapery falling in classic lines from the right shoulder. This is a Poiret model in rose, blue and white silk, with a very unusual trimming consisting of crocheted bands wrapping about the shoulders.

One-Side Trimming.

Hats as well as dresses have come under the influence of one-sided trimming. Some unusual trimmings appear. A lace scarf tied in a tailored bow on a plain velvet hat is quite out of the ordinary. Following in the train of the long trailing scarfs used on hats during the past summer, the ends of this lace scarf fall to the wearer's knees. This is a simple type of hat but extremely picturesque and graceful.

Metal lace is far more popular in autumn millinery than it deserves to be, for nothing less practical as a hat trimming could well be imagined. Many of the high-crowned hats of the Second Empire period show one-sided trimmings in the form of birds or clusters of small feathers.

Great extravagance is apparent in the lavish use of fur trimmings on this autumn's clothes. Chinchilla and monkey head the list. Monkey in black is still a big leader, though gray and sable color will be much in demand. Narrow double fringes of monkey set together with a fancy braid are much used as a trimming.

There is every indication that many short capes will be worn—that is, cape collars nearly large enough to be considered wraps. It is in these pieces that the furrier shows his artistry in making patterns in one fur and filling the interstices with a second fur.

The New Coiffure

Hairdressing has always played an important part in the history of fashion. Today the coiffure and its appendages are receiving even more attention than usual. Aside from the fact that a woman's appearance is either made or marred by the manner in which she dresses her hair, there was bound to be a keen reaction from the far-reaching bobbed-hair vogue. Indeed, it would hardly seem appropriate to combine the more dignified types of dresses and their lengthened and draped lines with anything but real dignity in hairdressing.

In Paris at the present time the fashion is to draw the hair back tightly to reveal the ears. For some time past even the woman who was the fortunate possessor of beautifully shaped ears was compelled to dress her hair so as to completely conceal them.

In the winter of 1921 this mode of hairdressing was affected by many smart women, particularly in Paris, but was not taken up very widely, nor with much enthusiasm. There is still some doubt as to whether it will be generally accepted this year because it is undoubtedly a trying fashion.

Many women will not be willing to adopt this mode of hairdressing in the daytime, but will, aided by one of the new hair bands, find it quite attractive in the evening. These bands are made of tinsel-edged velvet leaves colored to match the gown, of rhinestones and velvet combined, of metallic brocades, silver lame, flowers and feathers, as well as all sorts of pearl, crystal and colored beads.

Occasionally the maker of the evening gown designs a headdress to accompany it. With the wide choice which obtains in the selection of hair ornaments and bandeaux and the opportunity of having a real artist create a suitable one, there is no longer any necessity for wearing anything inappropriate or unbecoming.

Book Defrayed Burial Expense.

JACKSON WAS NOT IGNORANT MAN

Andrew Jackson's nickname of "Old Hickory" is sufficiently reminiscent of the rugged environment which produced one of the most picturesque characters the White House has known in its long history; it is indicative of the pioneer and the soldier, rather than the scholar and the statesman. And yet, should further evidence be required touching upon the scholarly attainments of the man who, although president of the United States, "never learned to write the English language correctly," it is not far to seek. For in the realm of anecdote Andrew Jackson is well remembered.

Although not a learned man in the ordinary sense, he was nevertheless a student of mankind in the mass, with a profound knowledge of popular psychology. Harvard university thought well enough of him to confer upon him its coveted degree of Doctor of Laws. And that he understood the language of patriotism is illustrated by the following story: As he was concluding a speech one day, some irreverent auditor shouted: "You must give 'em a little Latin, doctor." Not a whit abashed, "Old Hickory" solemnly doffed his hat, stepped forward to the front of the platform and uttered these words: "E pluribus unum, my friends, sine qua non!"

Action Out of an Old Rug.

An old rug too worn for use may be placed on the porch or kitchen floor and painted on the wrong side. Give the rug two coats of paint and one of weather-proof varnish. You will find you have a firm, serviceable rug, easily cleaned and suitable for kitchen or sun porch. By varnishing occasionally the rug will last several years.—Delineator.

FOR COAT AND DRESS NECKWEAR

Finely Plaited Standing Collar and Jabot of Organdie May Be Made at Home.

A most flattering piece of neckwear suitable for wear with a coat or a dress consists of a finely plaited standing collar and jabot of organdie. A narrow black velvet ribbon encircles the lower edge of the collar, holding the plaits in place, but allowing the collar to be frilled at the top. The ribbon ties at the front in a bow with long streamers.

A collar of this sort might easily be made at home in the following way: Two long strips of organdie are picot edged and then plaited. One piece is bound with black velvet ribbon to be used for the collar. The other piece—the jabot—may also be bound with black if desired and joined to the collar.

For wear with a suit coat or a coat dress is a smart standing collar made of wide black ribbon and finished at the left side with a loop which stands out over the shoulder. This, too, might easily be made at home. In making this collar the ribbon should be tacked to a material with some stiffness and then lined with either another strip of ribbon or a piece of silk. A ribbon girdle may be made to match and if desired the ends may be finished with long silk tassels. A one-piece dress is lifted out of the ordinary by a collar and girdle of this sort.

Gown Draperies.

The fad for having floating panels and apron draperies attached to the girdle continues in popularity and is noticed on many of the newest fall models.

Silk Handbags.

Silk handbags seem to be replacing those of leather. Blue and black moire are popular materials. These are frequently mounted with silver and jeweled frames.

LESSON FOR OCTOBER 29

MESSIAH'S MINISTRY (WORLD'S TEMPERANCE SUNDAY)

LESSON TEXT—Isa. 61:1-9.

GOLDEN TEXT—Righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any people.—Prov. 14:34.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Matt. 7:15-20; Rom. 14:13.

PRIMARY TOPIC—How Four Boys Became Healthy and Happy.—Dan. 1:3-20.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Destroying the World's Enemy.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Progress of Prohibition Throughout the World.

The lesson committee has gratuitously named this lesson "World-wide Prohibition." Neither the text nor the context, directly or implied, says anything about prohibition as we understand the use of the word. However, when Messiah shall reign upon the earth the rum traffic with all other iniquitous practices will be abolished.

I. Messiah's Commission (v. 1).

He was appointed by the Lord. God's plan for the world is a time of peace and blessing. This condition of blessedness is to be brought about through the ministry of the Messiah. As a qualification for this work, the anointing of the Spirit of God was upon Him.

II. Messiah's Program (vv. 1, 2).

Messiah's program is twofold: to "proclaim the acceptable year of the Lord, and the day of vengeance of our God." The careful reading of Luke 4:18-21 will show that Jesus suspended reading of this passage at the comma, in Isaiah 61:2. His first coming opened up the day of "grace and the acceptable year of the Lord," and His second coming will usher in "the day of vengeance of our God," (II Thess. 1:7-10; cf. Mal. 3:1-3).

1. Proclaiming the Acceptable Year of the Lord (vv. 1, 2). In His ministry of grace He preached (a) "good tidings to the meek." "Meek" here means not only a grace, but a condition, that is, those in poverty and affliction. (2) "Bind up the broken-hearted." "Bind up" signifies healing. (3) "Liberty to the captives." The figure of deliverance from the Babylonian captivity is used to describe deliverance from sin and death (Heb. 2:15). (4) "Opening of the prison to them that are bound." Messiah's work was to give deliverance to those who were enslaved by the consequences of their sins. (5) "The acceptable year of the Lord." This means a space of time in which God would accept all who repent of their sins and come to Him.

2. Proclaiming the day of vengeance of God (v. 2). While the day of mercy is lengthened out, the time of judgment will surely come. The day of vengeance will break upon the world when the Lord shall be revealed from heaven (II Thess. 1:7-10). The period of mercy is called "year," while the period of vengeance is called "day," showing that the period of mercy is much longer than the period of wrath.

III. The Blessings of Messiah's Kingdom (vv. 3-9).

1. "Comfort all that mourn" (v. 2). The day of vengeance will bring sorrow to many, but they shall be comforted when they shall see the King on the throne.

2. "Give unto them beauty for ashes" (v. 3). This peculiarly applies to Israel. When the blessed Saviour shall reign as King there will be no wearing of sackcloth and ashes, but instead the garment of beauty.

3. "Oil of Joy for Mourning" (v. 3). Israel has been mourning for centuries. When the Messiah shall reign as King they shall be glad.

4. "Garment of Praise for the Spirit of Heaviness" (v. 3). Instead of wearing the symbol of the burden of sin they shall be clothed so as to indicate their joyfulness.

5. "Called Trees of Righteousness" (v. 3). These trees represent Israel as planted by God and bearing fruit, not as reeds bowed down with sorrow.

6. "They Shall Build the Old Wastes" (v. 4). Israel shall return to their own land and shall rebuild the city of Jerusalem, and the cities of Judah which lie waste.

7. "Strangers Shall Stand and Feed Your Flocks" (v. 5). In the time of the kingdom the Gentiles shall render voluntary service unto Israel so that Israel may devote her whole time to the service of God.

8. "Ye Shall Be Named the Priests of the Lord" (v. 6). God chose Israel to be the priestly nation to represent Him to the Gentiles.

9. "For Your Shame Ye Shall Have Double" (v. 7). Instead of the shame and confusion which Israel has experienced for centuries she shall have double honor and rejoicing.

10. "I Will Direct Their Work, and Make a Covenant With Them" (vv. 8, 9). God will vindicate His people and cause the Gentiles to see the divine favor upon them. Israel shall be the head of the nations and the Gentiles shall acknowledge God's favor upon them.

Prayers of Jesus.

St. Luke on nine occasions directs attention to the prayers of Jesus—after severe labors; before the choosing of the apostles; before Peter's great confession; at His transfiguration; for Peter, in Gethsemane; for His murderers; and at the moment of death. His first prayer that we hear of was at His baptism.—Farrar.

God Will Protect.

God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that we are able to bear, but will with the temptation also make a way of escape, that ye may be able to bear it.—I Corinthians 10:13.

GOOD NEWS

GOOD news that will gladden the hearts of all good citizens is furnished by last Saturday's big registration all over the State and County. Wilmington's Saturday's registration was 8500. That of the Third District, in St. Georges Hundred totals 791, the largest ever made in this District.

Reports coming in from all sections of the State show the same heavy registration on the last day. This proves that the voters are wideawake and mean to do their duty on election day by supporting the whole Republican ticket, National, State and County.

So far, so good. Now it remains for these well registered Republicans to complete the performance of their civic duties by turning out, regardless of the weather, on election day, Tuesday, November the 7th, and voting for the gentlemen on the Republican ticket—as worthy a set of candidates for the various offices as ever appealed to their fellow-citizens.

HEARD IN THE HEADLINES

SOME headlines picked from a few metropolitan papers of recent date: "Cotton mill men predict wider trade;" "Armour predicts prosperity ahead;" "Copeland (head of the bureau of business research at Harvard) sees boom coming;" "Southern textile men are optimistic;" "bonds are active and move higher;" "insurance men expect expansion;" "cotton prices gain 37 to 45 points;" "shipping booms at Frisco" (due to increase in exports); "healthy condition rules wool trade under tariff;" "activity in leather;" "1922 cotton exports to be 6,000,000 bales;" "dry goods demand better;" "socialist leaders turn to Democrats;" "Republican nominees to work together."

"The Republicans are on the defensive," declares ex-candidate Cox. Rubbish! They were never more on the offensive, and their good works speak for themselves. The socialists have learned in what camp to find their friends and coadjutors.

PARLEY, NO. 99,999

THERE is going to be another European peace parley. This time the principal subject for discussion will be conditions in the Near East. The scene will probably be Scutari, near Constantinople, and it is reported the United States will be formally invited to send delegates. There is no more reason, however, why American representatives should be at the meeting than there was for them to attend the late conferences at Genoa and The Hague. In fact, our interests in the Near East are far less important than they are in the territory covered by the two former meetings. Neither Turkey nor the allies will have the temerity to deny American ships passage through the Dardanelles, and the missionary projects and commercial concessions in which Americans are interested can be safeguarded as they have in the past without forfeiting any of our right to independent action.

GOVERNMENT OUT OF BUSINESS

BIT by bit foreign governments are emulating the example of the Harding Administration in taking the government out of business. The feature of the present session of the parliament of New South Wales, Australia, for example, proposes to legislate to curtail the functions of the basic-wage-fixing tribunal and to abolish the profiteering prevention act "at once instead of waiting for it to expire at the end of the year." It will also "abolish the fair rents court. The primary effect of this court was to discourage building. It also resulted in higher instead of lower rentals." The fourth reform is to "abolish the housing board. The cottages built at great cost by this board are now vacant because of the high prices asked." Two of these evils, a rent commission, and a housing commission, we still have in Washington. The housing commissioners appear to be in a constant state of turmoil with the tenants of government apartments, and the commissioners draw high salaries and create a drain on the federal funds. It is probable that this housing commission, another peculiar inheritance of the Wilson Administration, will be put out of business in the near future. If war ever gave it an excuse for existence, peace certainly warrants its early demise.

A FORD BOOM

THE notoriety brought to Muscle Shoals by Henry Ford has had an effect that he probably did not anticipate. Real estate promoters are reaping a rich harvest through their exploitation of the future of the vicinity. Purchase of town lots and business property is described as "the investment of the age," and intensive selling campaigns are now being conducted in eight states to induce people to buy on a $10-a-month installment plan. Similar booms in the past have usually brought losses to those who accepted the story of the land speculators, and there is no reason to believe that the result at Muscle Shoals will be any different. Unfortunately the Ford publicity has enabled the promoters to put fancy prices on their holdings.

MEATS of Quality and Purity

SINCE we have been in the Meat Business in Middletown we have always tried to sell you Quality Meats, the kind that we would have our children eat because we buy only the Blue Ribbon products that have been inspected and are pure and wholesome. We don't claim to sell the cheapest, but we do claim to sell the best Meats at reasonable prices.

A few days ago a lady said to us "I have tried them all and have come back HOME because I get the best services from your store; in Quality and Purity it reminds me of home because you keep it so clean".

Stop in and give us your next order or send the children. You can trust us to send just as good cuts by them.

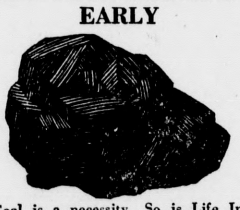
GET YOUR ORDER IN EARLY



Coal is a necessity. So is Life Insurance. But isn't it strange that the man who never fails to place his order in April for his winter supply of coal because of the monthly increase in price will put off taking Life Insurance year after year notwithstanding the fact that he knows he must pay more for it as he grows older. The family of the man who neglects Life Insurance too long may not have any money with which to buy coal if anything should happen to him.

To Gain a Good Reputation

The way to gain a good reputation is to endeavor to be what you appear." That is precisely the manner in which Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has gained its reputation as a cure for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough. Every bottle that has ever been put out by the manufacturers has been fully up to the high standard of excellence claimed for it. People have found that it can be depended upon for the relief and cure of these ailments and that it is pleasant and safe to take.

The new Opera House bonds are being sold rapidly. Have you made your purchase?

How Better Than Pills?

The question has been asked. In what way are Chamberlain's Tablets superior to the ordinary cathartic and liver pills? Our answer is, they are easier and more pleasant to take and their effect is so gentle that one hardly realizes that it is produced by a medicine. Then, they not only move the bowels but improve the appetite and strengthen the digestion.

SYMBOL OF RUSSIAN TRAGEDY

The Bourgeoica, Popular Invention, Shows to What Depths the People Have Been Reduced.

A bourgeoica is a small sheet iron stove, writes Eleanor Franklin Egan in the Saturday Evening Post. Or it may be only a 5-gallon gasoline can with a little door at one end and a hole in the top to let out the smoke. It is an institution in soviet Russia and is an invention of the kind of which necessity is the mother.

In the communistic habitations of the ruined and homeless bourgeoisie it takes the place of both heating arrangements and the kitchen range. Nearly everybody makes his own bourgeoica out of whatever materials he may be able to come by, and in social circles it provides a topic of conversation of never-ending interest. Their habits and the various methods employed to regulate them are matters of primary importance.

Its name, bestowed upon it in ironical derision, denotes its relationship to the general scheme of things. It burns nothing but tiny bits of wood and is therefore very economical, but when it is first set going it smokes considerably, with the result that practically every bourgeois home in Russia—such as it is—smells as though its flues were badly out of order.

It is capable of bringing the average winter temperature in a fair-sized room up to zero, or maybe to 10 degrees above, and this is as much comfort as the bourgeoisie are expected to require. This sounds like an exaggeration, but it is not. It would be impossible to exaggerate any phase of the tragedy that has befallen Russia.

FORCED TO GIVE UP HAREMS

Financial Necessity Really the Mother of Any Turkish Reform in That Direction.

The word "harem," for all its rich connotation, is now simply the name for the women's quarters in the Turkish home. Poverty in the palaces and out of them is more responsible than western ideals for the changed condition there.

Education and the world movement for broadening the freedom of women have, of course, had their influence. The French novel also put a window of a kind in the Turkish harem, and many Turkish men are vigorously protesting the notions of freedom which they have put into the heads of the women.

But necessity, rising out of the long, protracted wars, is the real mother of freedom for Turkish women. The Turkish coffers, both public and private, are too depleted to permit the expensive establishments of the old days. Men are no longer able to maintain women in idleness, and war, with its demands on man power, has made woman labor an actual necessity.—Bessie Beatty in the Century Magazine.

The Sunday Picnic.

The late Mrs. George Gould was not narrow-minded, but she hated any desecration of the Sabbath.

One summer Sunday, while motoring in Lakewood, she came upon a rich Lakewood family, the Smiths, principal stockholders in the well-known Smith asbestos firm.

The Smith family was picnicking. The father and the three sons in their shirt sleeves were drinking whisky and playing poker, while the daughters and the mother smoked cigarettes and played bridge for high stakes.

"'Well,' said Mrs. Gould, 'I wouldn't have believed that you Smiths had such faith in your asbestos.'"

Chemicals From Corn Cobs.

By developing new methods of extracting furfural from corncobs chemists of the Department of Agriculture have greatly reduced the cost of making this chemical, which is used in the manufacture of soluble and insoluble resins for stains, varnishes, insulating material, printing plates and many other articles. Furfural has been made commercially from oat hulls and has been selling for about 50 cents a pound, but when made from cobs it is estimated that it can be manufactured at a cost of about 10 cents a pound. Cobs give the greatest yield of furfural of any of the common agricultural materials that contain it.—Department of Agriculture Bulletin.

She Had Felt It.

A visitor was admiring a beautiful monument in an ancient church. Gazing at the effigies of a ruffled knight and stately dame, with a kneeling train of children behind each figure, he mused aloud: "Surely such surroundings must have a purifying influence!"

"Yes, indeed, sir," was the startling reply of the church cleaner, who had walked up unobserved. "Many a time I've washed them images' faces for 'em, when a flick of a duster was all that was expected of me!"

Birds Travel Far.

Many of our feathered voyagers make single flights of 500 to 700 miles, and migrations of over 4,000 miles. The annual pilgrimages of such old friends as the bobolink, the purple martin, the scarlet tanager, cliff and barn swallows, nighthawks and blackpoll warblers all exceed 4,000 miles in both spring and fall.

It is rather humbling to think what brave and self-sufficient world travelers some of our tiny feathered friends are.

Aztec.

In a prehistoric ruin near Aztec, N. Mex., excavators found a basket-work shield, for warding off the enemy's spears.

The owner cunningly had coated it with flakes of mica, fastened with gum. In the sunlight this worked like a mirror, blinding the enemy.

Behold, there, one of the earliest manifestations of the inventive spirit, chief thing that separates us from the savagery of the past.

Our finest modern inventions will be considered crude when they are unearthed by future archeologists.

STOMACH RELIEF WORTH $100 BY TAKING CAPSULES

"For more than six months I had been troubled with a bunch in my stomach and constant belching of gas which gave me much distress. I tried several remedies without apparent relief. Recently I secured some of your Little Wonder Capsules, and must state that they are rightly named 'Little Wonders,' for after taking three capsules, the pain and distress left me. I stated to a relative that the result after taking the capsules was marvelous, and I would have given $100.00 if by so doing I could have found the relief that I did find in taking three of the capsules. They are certainly worth their weight in gold." Mrs. Esther A. Day, proprietor Blue Mountain House, Gile N. Y.

A Remarkable Record

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has a remarkable record. It has been in use for colds, croup and whooping cough for almost half a century and has constantly grown in favor and popularity as its good qualities became better known. It is the standard and main reliance for these diseases in thousands of homes. The facts that it can always be depended upon and is safe and pleasant to take are greatly in its favor when it is wanted for children.

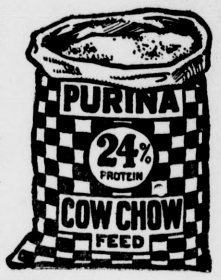
A Cow can give milk to her fullest capacity only when fed the right proportion or balance of milk-making materials. Milk is made up of Protein, Carbohydrates, Fat, Minerals and Water, in proportions that, practically speaking, can't be varied. Instead of making imperfect milk, a poorly fed cow gives less milk.



Feed Purina Cow Chow

and your cows will get all the Protein and Calcium needed to balance your Carbohydrate roughness.

All we ask is that you give Purina Cow Chow a trial and let your milk scales show you why you should keep on feeding it.

Early Saving Leads to Fortune

Nearly everybody wants to get a fortune. What's the recipe? Early saving! It is a noteworthy fact that the foundations of many great fortunes were laid in early life when as boys and youths their owners practiced economy, and put their earnings at interest.
